The game

MiniPong is a recreational game based on the traditional Ping Pong, offering an alternative to combine sports with fun in various spaces.

Its versatility can be a hit both in the office and in the living room, eliminating the tedious task of setting up and dismantling a traditional table without sacrificing gameplay.

MiniPong provides a novel option for those who enjoy creating, having fun, and relaxing with others, with something that is easy to set up and take down wherever they want to use it.

Rules

Serve:

The serve is performed by placing the ball in the palm of your hand, not on two fingers. It is thrown at least 16 cm high and then struck. Each player serves for two points, then passes the serve to the opposing pair. This continues until the end of the game; however, when both players tie at 10 points, each player will serve only one point alternately until the end of the game.

You can repeat the serve only under certain conditions. You can do so if the ball hits the net before reaching the other side of the table, if your opponent hits the ball before it bounces on their side, or if your opponent was not ready when you served.

Scoring:

A player or pair will win a game by reaching 11 points, except when both players or pairs tie at 10 points. In this case, to win, they must reach 12 points. In other words, a player needs to have a minimum 2-point lead over the opponent to win.

Matches consist of an odd number of games, which can be 3, 5, or 7 games, and the player who wins more than half of the games wins the match. For example, in a 5-game match, the winner is the one who wins 3 of them.

During the match, the MiniPong paddle cannot touch the table, and it's not allowed to touch the ball with the free hand or move or touch the table with any part of the body, as any of these actions result in losing the point.

You lose a point if:

- You fail to hit the ball.
- The ball you hit touches the net and falls on your side of the court.
- You hit it so hard that the ball goes out of the court.
- You hit the ball before it has bounced once on your side of the court.
- The ball bounces twice on your side of the court.
- You accidentally move the table while playing.
